Course Overview Is this course right for you?

FAILING TO PLAN IS PLANNING TO FAIL

Targeting income through short-term trading strategies requires a specific skill set, and enters you into a higher risk environment than simply buying shares for the long term. We believe it is important to start your trading journey correctly, with the right education and support.

At its heart, our course is about providing you with a structured and practical approach to your decision making. Through face-to-face and online components, our aim is to equip you with a set of step-by-step trading rules that cover how to find a trade using technical analysis, pricing up an appropriate income strategy, and managing the trade to completion. These are the same trading rules we use to find many of our trade recommendations we provide our traders and students.

This course is all about simplifying your decision making

LOCAL AND GLOBAL MARKETS

Our focus during the course is on the Australian stock market - it's open when we are awake! But the skill set you will develop through the course can be applied to other global markets and securities. For example, us and many of our clients trade the U.S markets at night, trade currency swaps, and trade base commodities like gold and silver.

ZERO KNOWLEDGE REQUIRED

This course assumes zero knowledge and experience. If you truly are starting from scratch, there are several hours of optional online pre-learning that covers the bare basics like terminology and what a market is etc. Even if you have some experience, this course will help undo the bad habits you may have picked up. By the very least it will almost certainly help improve your analysis, catalog of strategies, and risk management systems.

UNPARALLELED SUPPORT

The key feature that separates this course from others in Australia is the amount of support. Not only is there a plethora of online resources to help you revise and practice, but each student is assigned their own personal trainer and mentor. Each mentor has years of experience both teaching and trading. Their job is to work with you one on one to implement the rules in the live market. We cannot teach experience, but by having your own personal trainer, you will be able to practice and gain experience in a progressive learning environment with an experienced professional looking over your shoulder.

WHO ARE WE?

Get taught by a team of professional traders

Over 18 years delivering education

TradersCircle is a boutique trading company that was founded by Michael Cornips and Carlo Castellano in 2005. Our mission is to be “traders who support other traders”.

Education is typically not a profit centre for us - it is just a stepping stone to working with you as a trader in the long run.

Our purpose has been to build a small community of sophisticated traders that we can provide continued support and high levels of service in the form of professional advice, education, tools, and execution.

OUR TRADING DESK

The majority of our business revolves around our trading desk and our team of professional advisors. Our advisors main purpose is to provide advice to our clients in the form of direction picking, trade ideas, pricing strategies, managing open positions, and executing orders.

Our advisors are the trainers that mentor each student through their education. Once students have practiced first and are ready to transition to real trading, their trainer simply turns into their advisor.

CARLO CASTELLANO

The face-to-face components of our education courses are run by Carlo Castellano - a highly successful professional trader and educator who cofounded TradersCircle back in 2005. Carlo used to run one of Australia's busiest options trading desks.

Now semi-retired, Carlo trades from home, puts out trade recommendations, and runs our face-to-face workshops. Not only are you learning from a professional that has been trading for over 30 years, but also someone who has tenure as a teacher of financial markets.

Key Learning Outcomes

By the end of the four-month program, you should be well versed and already gaining experience in each of the core topics listed below. We believe that each of these core topics must be mastered in order to have a successful trading career.

Technical Analysis

Technical analysis is one of the two main types of analysis (the other being fundamental analysis) and is the primary method for picking short-term direction. Technical analysis essentially revolves around reading charts and reading past price action to help predict future price movements.

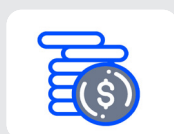

- Trend analysis
- Support/resistance
- Technical patterns
- Entry signals
- Mathematical indicators

Income Strategies

There are several income generating strategies you will learn through the four month course that mostly rely on derivatives and equities. By equipping yourselves with different strategies, you will be in a position to trade any market condition. Types of strategies taught include:

- Strategies that profit from both rising and falling markets
- Sideways profiting strategies
- Multi directional strategies
- Leverage to reduce capital risk whilst maintaining reasonable profitability

Money Management

You will have losing trades. You therefore need to manage your risk and capital effectively. It is important to have risk systems in place to help preserve capital.

This section covers exit signals and effectively planning trades to know exactly where you will be taking profits and limiting losses.

Trading Rules

Every trader should have a set of trading rules to follow that helps both keep decision making mechanical and alleviate the psychology that underpins trading decisions. The above core topics are taught in the context of a set of trading rules. They will filter trades, price up the right strategy, and manage the trade to its completion. These are the same rules we often use to find trade recommendations we send out to our trading community.
